Question	Answers
Form Fin - 4 : "Financial requirements for current contract commitments", if we are to provide "outstanding contract value instead of outstanding Financial resource requirement, the result would be monthly revenue unless the column "outstanding contract value" changes to outstanding resource requirement. Hence, can you kindly clarify the required information and how the "Monthly financial resource requirement (X/Y) can be calculated by using outstanding contract value (X) and remaining contract period (Y)"	The form is correct. This is basically a measure of how much finances the contractor has for the project, after deducting the financial requirement for the contractor's other commitments. Hence, the remaining contract value of each contract is divided into the remaining months of that project, and the sum of all these monthly requirements is considered as the total Monthly Finances Requirement by the contractor. The contractor must demonstrate that he has access to financial resources more than this amount, which is the amount he can allocate for this project.
